Soundwave (2007) In the final episode of the first season, Soundwave searches for an "entry" point into Cybertron. He meets Primus, creator of Cybertron, and reveals to Primus that a lifeform living on Earth is causing his Cybertronians to go mad. Soundwave's probe is subsequently destroyed by Optimus Prime. The 2005 series ending summary indicated that, after landing on Earth, Soundwave wiped out the Autobot base on the planet, including the AllSpark and the remnants of Optimus Prime's body. This was not in the script. In the 2007 series ending, Soundwave deactivates the Autobot base, but is subsequently destroyed in an explosion as the Decepticons retreat. Megatron (2005) Originally introduced in the first season of the 2005 series as an ally of the Autobots, Megatron joins with Ratchet and Grimlock in an attempt to force the Autobots to flee Cybertron. After Grimlock is killed, Megatron and the Decepticons head to Earth, where they eliminate a convoy of Decepticon supply ships. After the Decepticons have taken control of Earth, Megatron visits the Ark to meet with Optimus Prime, who challenges Megatron to help him destroy the Decepticons before they can use Earth as their base of operations. However, Megatron and Optimus are forced to retreat to Earth when the Ark is destroyed by the AllSpark. At the end of the episode, Megatron is seen attempting to take control of the Ark by using "jump pack" technology, but the technology has already been rendered useless by the destruction of the AllSpark. In the 2007 series finale, the Autobots bring Megatron back to the Ark for more experiments on his body, hoping to build Megatron into a force that can be used against the Decepticons, using the Ark to create a new body for him. The Autobots fail to get close enough to the Ark to rescue him, so the Decepticons simply destroy it. In the 2008 series finale, Megatron emerges from the Ark and claims to be the "supreme commander" of the Decepticons. Dreadwing (2005) Dreadwing is an enemy of the Autobots and is a very large Decepticon. He first appeared in "Dread", but he is more prominently featured in the 2005 series as the main antagonist, participating in the destruction of 82157476af
